Dear Parents and Carers,

Welcome back to what is a very strange start to a summer term. We hope you are keeping well and managed to try to take some time to do something different during the Easter break.

We continue to try to enhance our use of Google Classroom in order to support children's learning in the home environment. Whilst we understand that the learning will be different to what our children are used to, we will keep themes as similar as we can to the curriculum that would have been accessed in school. My Monday morning, you will have received a year group newsletter that outlines the learning for this term. The government and other sources continue to develop new resources to support home learning and we will continue to share these with you as they become available to us.

School gives a structure to all of us and as this period continues, we appreciate how difficult it is to keep routines going in our own homes. Please do not put additional pressure on yourselves to match the time your child would have been learning in school. An adult working with a child individually is a lot more intensive than learning alongside their peers in the class setting. Remember the average attention span of an 8-year-old is only about 20 minutes! You know your child best so are the best person to make decisions about what is right for them.

Just reading a book, handwriting or practising times tables are worthwhile things that children can do independently. Whilst life in lockdown can be challenging, it can also spark creative ways to spend time. We would love to hear about some of the things you are doing together as a family such as baking, gardening, painting and drawing. This can then be shared with the Horn Park community via our twitter page.

Like you, we are aware that there will be things our children have missed out on when away from school. We are planning to ensure we are well prepared for the return to school whenever that may be.

If there is any advice or support, we can give you, you can contact us at school as usual during school hours or send us an email to hpparents@compassps.uk

Stay safe,

Miss Crosland, Ms Bernard, Mr Leslie and the whole Horn Park team.
